Hi, I took the exam last August and I scored 7.5 in the overall band score (9.0 in reading).

Your notes are great. If I had not got your support, I wouldn't have scored such high marks.

Dear Norman,

Your notes are really useful. I score half a band more in only one week of preparation. Also, the special sentence structures you teach help me get a much better score in writing. You are a great teacher.

Best wishes, Viola

WRITING 高分範文

一篇文章，並非用冷門的字詞，句子寫得長便叫好文章，而是要合乎題目要求，用字恰當，句子結構正確而有變化，才會高分，Norman Ng會為大家分析、拆解不同的句子結構，指導大家於考試中使出增值大法。

請看看以下範文：

以下文章並沒有用一些過份艱深的字詞及複雜的句型，便已將下列圖表以流暢的文字描述出來，可奪得高分。

The graph shows the percentages of aged people in Japan, Sweden and the USA. It indicates that generally the proportions of elderly people in all the three countries are expected to increase, although at varied paces, to around 25% by year 2040.

In 1940, the proportion of people at 65 or above stood at 5% in Japan, approximately 7% in Sweden and around 9% in the US. However, while the figures for the two Western countries grew to about 15% in around 1990, the figure for Japan dipped to the region of 3% in the same period. Later, Japan's figure rebounded to about 5% shortly after 2000.

In spite of some fluctuations, the proportions of older people are expected to continue to climb in the next two to three decades in all the three countries. In particular, a dramatic rise is forecasted between 2030 and 2040 for Japan, rendering this Asian country's proportion of older people comparable to those in the Western countries as 2040 approaches.
